REFLECTIONS

Reflections of a new day as we journey to the dawning of discovery brings forth the challenges of today. Now is the time for us to stretch out and take the wings of knowledge, to spread our horizons for tomorrow may be too late. The journey is long; the road is weary and the reward awaits; for today is the beginning of a magnificent dream called yesterday's tomorrow.

As we pass through the halls of academia, our reflections on success and the assessments of self combine to make our thoughts reality. Reflections of responsibility . . . the need to be, to do, to have. Reflections of opportunity . . . the chance to express, to learn, to solve. Reflections of ability . . . the capacity to envision, to change, to grow. Indeed we reflect without as well as within.

In reflecting we project our thoughts, our imaginations. We create our own universe—ourselves. The web we weave becomes a self-imposed prison of assumption and as such we must realize that it is ours to control. Unerringly youth beguiles the uninitiated for lack of experience. With experience comes opportunity; with opportunity, responsibility; with responsibility, expectation and with expectation, hope.

We present this yearbook to you in hopes for tomorrow and in the future that the dreams you dream and the reflections of your yesteryears combine to make each day a truly memorable experience.

REGISTRATION

The department of English and speech presented two theatre classics during the 1982-83 season. In the fall Professor Sherwood Snyder directed "Death of a Salesman", the tragic story of Willy Loman played by Jessie Brown. In the spring Professor James Dresen directed the comedy "Harvey" the delightful tale of a very tall rabbit and his friend, Elwood Dowd, portrayed by Brandon Arnold.

Throughout the school year, in concert in the theatre or in the gym at a basketball game, music students provide every kind of musical experience from jazz to the classics.

Outstand

Outstanding talent was showcased in several events throughout the academic year by Chicago State University students. The Latin American Students Festival, an Evening of Poetry—sponsored by the Black Writers Forum, and the talent show are just some of the most notable activities featured where a spectacular array of talent was immensely enjoyed by fellow students, faculty and others.

ing Talent

Thanksgiving, a time of giving and sharing among people; a time to give thanks and to show appreciation for all the blessings of the past year. 1982 was indeed a time of remembrance and of giving honor. Students, faculty and friends remembered these thoughts as CSU welcomed Chicago's senior citizens to the annual Pre-Thanksgiving Day Dinner.

First Annual Multi-class Reunion was an outstanding success.

Below: Annual Phonathon nets over $30,000.

Politics At CSU

1983 has been a historical year in politics. Successions and changes of world-wide consequence have occurred. Here in Chicago with the election of Harold Washington, the first black mayor of the City of Chicago, our city received national and international attention.

Another historic first occurred on the campus of Chicago State University—an event unprecedented in the annals of CSU; the students united together in staunch support of the cause and helped to bring about the historic victory.

We salute Mr. Washington and those students, staff and faculty who supported him!

Day

The 1983 homecoming celebration holds a unique and significant place in the memories of all CSU students, faculty, and alumni because for the first time our own CSU cougars held the prestigious honor of being the number one ranked basketball team in the NAIA. Furthermore, not only did we win the homecoming game by a score of 91-88, but we also proved our rightful ownership to the coveted title of being number one. The Hawks played a spectacular game, but the Cougars came to win and did!

HOMECOMING

Some of the activities included the fashion show where some CSU students put their best foot forward with some of the fashions of the 80's. The talent show, yet another outstanding event, was also featured. Some of CSU's most talented students came forth and showed fellow students, faculty, and others the best talent around. Homecoming week was ended by a dance where CSU students and others came to have a good time and let their hair down.

Ping-pong demands concentration, and a dash of "English", of course.

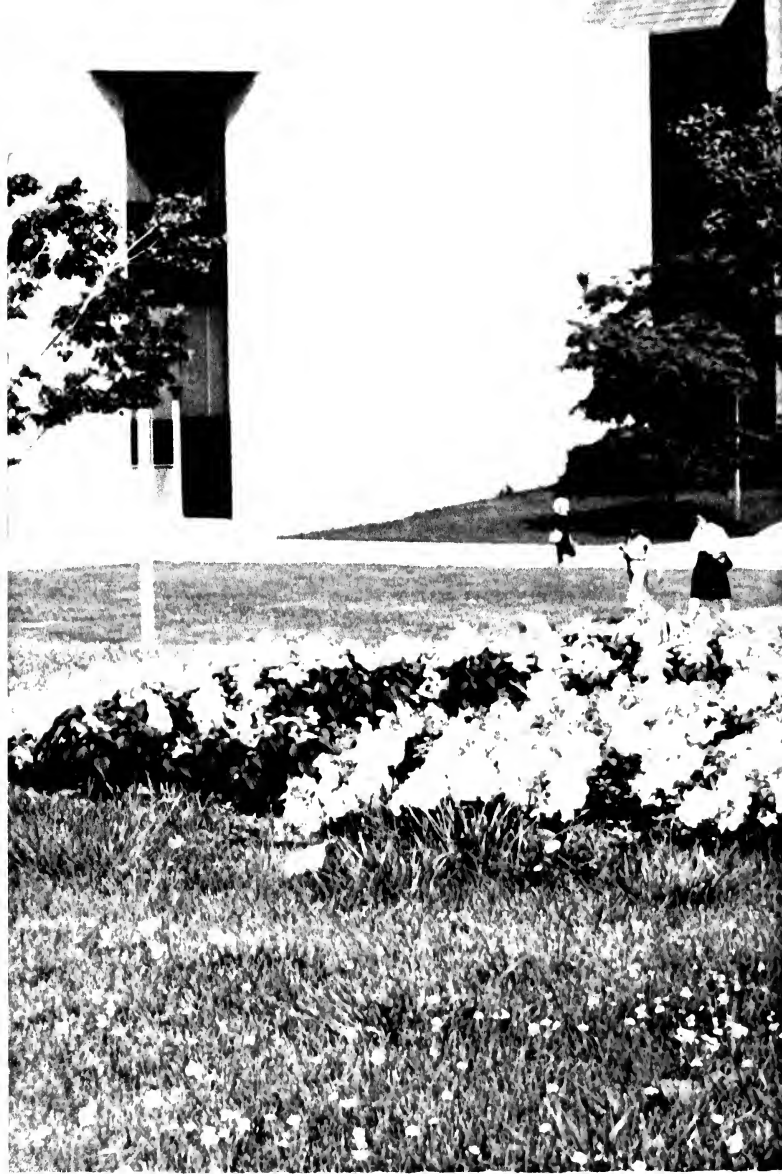

"How about a friendly game of pool?"

Cougars are intense in practice as well as play.

Men's Basketball: Having a Ball at the Top!

Looking to the future . . . that's exactly what Chicago State University's head Basketball Coach Bob Hallberg is keeping in mind while preparing for the upcoming 1982-83 collegiate basketball season. In defining the term "future" as far as the CSU Cougar basketball team is concerned, many factors come into play, such as the University's recent commitment to working towards an NCAA Division I status for the entire athletic program which will be effective as of September 1, 1984.

The new athletic season, therefore, will mark the start of a two-year transitional period where the CSU Men's Basketball Team (as well as all other CSU athletic programs), under Hallberg's guidance will be upgrading the caliber of competition they will play and also the talent of the entire team.

Coming off a winning 17-13 1981-82 season mark, the CSU Cougars anxiously anticipated the 28-game schedule which includes NCAA Division I opponents from Western Illinois University, Illinois State University, the University of South Alabama, Iowa State University and three-time NCAA Division III National Champions from North Park College. Last season, they seemed to have their suitcases perpetually packed as they travelled for 18 games and stayed home for nine—all of which the Cougars won.

Talentwise, Hallberg is confident that they've got what it takes to win. "Last year's five starters collectively averaged 12.3 points per game (all except one in double figures) and we hope to be able to maintain that type of balanced attack this year. As in the past, we will continue to stress and further develop the team concept of play," explained Hallberg.

"Winners"

Cougarettes

The Chicago State University women's basketball season promises to be one of the excitement as well as improvement for the Cougars. This year's squad will be working together as a unit during every phase of the game. "I'm very proud of all the great contributions each team member has already made," stated Coach Schefkowitz. "We are optimistic about the quality of our basketball team. This year's team possesses the qualities of pride, enthusiasm, desire and talent," continued Schefkowitz.

As far as team personnel is concerned, the Cougars will be bolstered by the return of six veterans, four of which are starters. Leading the returning veterans is "5 1/2" junior Juliana Comprindo, graduate of Percy Julian High School. Comprindo claimed Most Valuable Player honors for three consecutive seasons during her high school career.

TENNIS

VOLLEYBALL

According to Chicago State University's head Men's Tennis Coach Gary Sailes, this year's Men's Tennis team is the strongest tennis squad the University has been in 10 years. They will play a very ambitious schedule which includes 29 matches, three of them against NCAA Division I institutions. They will also participate in both the Chicagoland Collegiate Athletic Conference (CCAC) and the NAIA District 20 Tournaments.

Coach Sailes has had a highly successful recruiting year and was fortunate in getting key transfer student Mel Phillips from Southern Illinois University-Edwardsville where he was a member of the men's tennis squad that won the NCAA Division II title four times during the last six years.

The CSU Men's Tennis team has something that was previously lacking in past seasons, that is depth. "I predict that we will do well this season. We are looking forward to winning our conference CCAC tournament in May and one or two places in the NAIA District 20 Tournament," stated Coach Sailes.

This year's tennis squad promises to be even stronger according to Coach Sailes. He still is keeping his eyes peeled for quality players. There are also high school hopefuls in the wings who have expressed an interest in attending CSU.

Last year the Cougars accumulated a respectable 16-17-1 record amidst an extremely tough and competitive schedule. This season they hope to improve their dual meet and tournament records while participating in the National Association for Intercollegiate Athletics (NAIA) for the first time.

Highlights of the 1982-83 season includes three tough tournaments, namely the University of Wisconsin-Parkside Ranger Tournament, and the Moraine Valley Tournament. Chicago State hosts its own fourth Annual Cougar Invitational with the following teams scheduled to participate: College of DuPage, Rosary College, Trinity College, North Park College, Moody Bible College and the Illinois Institute of Technology.

As far as team personnel is concerned, Coach Raymond and Assistant Coach Duggan are highly optimistic. Among the returning veterans are junior Laura Kelly, from Mother of Sorrows High School, a strong hitter and middleblocker and junior Donna Stasiunas, from Maria High School, a fine off-side hitter and good blocker. Sophomore Jane Wolf from Mother McAuley High School will head the 6-0 attack as setter. This highly qualified nucleus will form the basis on which Coach Raymond hopes to build a tough squad. They should guide the squad through a rough season. The CSU Volleyball Cougars are a fairly young squad, with only three returning veterans and nine recruits.

College of Nursing Has Stamp of Approval

In 1981 the College of Nursing received initial accreditation from the National League for Nursing. The decision to grant accreditation was made by the Board of Review of the Division of Baccalaureate and Higher Degree Programs of the league. This achievement was due to the leadership, quality of the faculty and the nursing program.

Ruth Love Speaks Out

Dr. Ruth B. Love, general superintendent of the Chicago public schools, delivered the January commencement address to CSU graduates during the 307th commencement ceremonies.

In a challenge to Chicagoans to help public school children, Dr. Love announced the launching of the Chicago Education Corps, the system's comprehensive volunteer program.

"Anyone who has a desire to voluntarily contribute to the exciting task of renewing public education in our city will be enlisted," said Dr. Love.

Ruth Love, a native of California, was appointed to the position of general superintendent of the Chicago schools in 1981, after serving as superintendent of the Oakland Unified School District in California for six years.

During her address, Dr. Love stressed to the graduates the importance of backing public education, saying that America continues to be a strong nation because of it and not in spite of it.

"It was our system of public education that allowed us to reach unimagined heights as an industrial giant, made us a leader in space technology, and gives us the impetus and know-how required to compete in the complex communications and computer revolutions," she said.

Dr. Love appealed to the graduates to become involved in the new volunteer program and use their degrees to "uplift the spirits and physical conditions of all humankind."

YEARBOOKS IMPROVE WITH AGE

Ulysses Ruff

Another year has come and gone, and yet the memory lingers on as experience often does. Nothing can take the place of a memory, since memory is a part of experience and experience is always irreplaceable, albeit, not always profound. My experience during this past year has been to serve, enhance and develop an essential part of this university's heritage—its yearbook. This book will, I hope, become something of special value in the years to come for someone. A yearbook should be more than just a record of the previous year. The end of 1982 and the first portion of 1983 has been a pivotal period in my life because of spiritual, material and personal developments. Consequently it is my hope that this yearbook will somehow hold the same amount of significance for all of its readers since together we have overcome so many burdens, obstacles and adversities.

In closing, I am always pleased to identify just some of the individuals who have helped shape, direct and otherwise influence my efforts in this achievement. First and foremost, thanks be to God who makes all things possible, then to my wife who graciousness inspires me to greater heights. I am also grateful to Mr. Robert Hauwiler for his support and guidance. Last, but not least, I am indebted to my first mentor and very good friend, Mr. Ulysses Chambers and to all those who helped in so many ways to bring this book to completion through their support and hard work—namely President George Ayers, Provost William Sutton, Dean Barbara Henley, Terri Gibbs, Marcia Best, Gail Cannon, the yearbook staff and so many others. I thank all of you for your support and encouragement.

"I Have A Dream": A Sculpture By Abbott Pattison.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

As always, it is almost impossible to acknowledge all the individuals who have put their time and effort into making a product such as this one a success. Nevertheless we would like to thank everyone who contributed to this project and make mention of just a few who helped bring it to pass.

We would like to thank everyone for their support and encouragement of the Chicago State University yearbook.

We would also like to mention several individuals whose assistance in reviving the yearbook last year helped make it a reality: Eugene Neat, Calvin Harris, Curtis Jeffries, Sterling Simms for their photography, and Charles Sajna, Cynthia Lake and Diane Gilbert for their office support and assistance.
